

Reading Between the Lines: Understanding Primary Sources

an Academic Skills
Project workshop

What's a hagiography?

What do a 20th century newspaper and the Anglo-Saxon Chronicle have in common?

Do historical sources ever tell the truth?

Come along to next week's workshop to find out! You will have the chance to read real primary sources, have a go at writing your own, and learn how to start drawing your own conclusions from the sources left behind by people in the past. The workshop will cover both medieval and modern sources.

For all undergraduates.
Places limited: sign up on Moodle.

Tuesday 16th February
Old Class Library
5pm-6pm

